

An overview of moving pods

Do you plan to shift to a new house soon whether in your own city or across the continent or do you need to move furniture and other things while you redecorate? Are you looking for a storage place for your belongings in the time being? Or is it that you intend to refurnish and reinvent your entire house? If the answer to any of these questions is yes, then you are looking for moving pods.

Moving pods is a short form of moving Portable on Demand Storage. Moving pods can be said to be the solution to all such problems. This service was for the first time initiated in January 1998. A town with the name of Clearwater in Florida state can be said to be the originating place for the moving pods services. The original thinkers of the idea of moving pods can be attributed to Peter War Hurst, Roy Courtney, David Revelia and Bill Ash.

The moving pods container are brought to the home by the customer. These moving pods containers have to be filled by the customer himself. This has two advantages to it. Firstly the customers can take as long as they want in placing their belonging into the container. Secondly, this system gives the customer a complete control over his belongings placing them as he wants in the containers. Customers can comfortably put their stuff in the containers as these containers are kept on the ground level itself. The company employees are called when the customer is done with the packing to transport the moving pods container to the assigned destination. Special vehicles called Podzilla are used for such transportations.

There is another advantage of the entire system which is that the customers can lock the container themselves. This provides safety to the entire mechanism. The belongings of the customers cannot be tampered and secure and this gives them the mental satisfaction while transporting their stuff. The service of moving pods can be availed for destinations both near as well as far off. Ware houses are provided by the moving pods itself for storing of the containers in case the services have been availed only for keeping the material for a certain time duration.

A new trend that has emerged in the services offered by moving pods is the concept of Portable Shelter. This portable shelter includes a generator, bathroom and kitchen and a cramped up house to accommodate upto five persons. This portable shelter comes for a period of one month generally. These shelters act in emergency purposes or as a controlling point for the entire process. These portable shelters service can also be used by people who have moved to a new place but haven't found a place for living yet. The portable shelter of moving pods is a combination of a moving truck and a storage unit which is converted into a residential unit. The customer doesn't have to worry about moving the container throughout the place thus making it comfortable and safe for him to make the transfer or renovation of the house. Related Content Portable storage ...

About the Author

Find more info regarding portable storage containers, go to 1800packrat.com.

Source: <http://Coolness3.com>